Biographical / Historical

In 1907, Bishop Henry Satterlee wrote that he hoped the Central Tower of the then proposed National Cathedral, would be named the "Gloria in Excelsis" Tower. Construction of the Cathedral began in 1910, under the management of the George A. Fuller Company. It was the early 1960s that saw the final completion of the tower. The carved angels, shields, and other features were finally put into place by February 1964. On May 7, 1964 the Gloria in Excelsis Tower was dedicated at the National Cathedral in Washington, DC. A mass was held and a choir performed.
